

COURT REVERSES HARSH SENTENCE IN CRIMINAL CASE

Appellate Division Sets Precedent in Ruling on Carrying Pistol.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Third Department, Justice John Woodward writing the opinion, has decided that the Appellate Court has the right to reverse the conviction of one accused of crime when, in the judgment of the Appellate Court, the sentence imposed by the trial judge is excessive. This ruling, establishing a precedent, has aroused considerable interest in legal circles.

James I. Miles, a resident of Oneonta, Otsego County, was convicted of carrying a revolver without a license last December. The Judge before whom Miles was tried sentenced him to State prison for not less than one year or more than one year and four months. This sentence the Appellate Court holds was excessive, as there was nothing produced on his trial to show he was a person of bad repute.

"While the courts in civil actions," Justice Woodward writes, "have long recognized the right of reversing judgments because they were for inadequate or excessive amounts, there appears to have been an impression among the members of the bar that the judgment in a criminal case could not be disturbed on account of an excessive sentence and this impression has been so far controlling that many an act of injustice has been consummated under the forms of law which should have been righted in the Appellate Court; many an unjust sentence has been endured because counsel have failed to invoke the powers of the appellate tribunals to temper individual prejudices with judicial discretion."

Justice Woodward in concluding the opinion concurred in by three of his four associates says:

"It was an abuse of the discretion of the court to determine the punishment of the defendant at one year and four months, and not less than one year; the punishment was all out of proportion to the magnitude of the alleged offense, so far as appears from the evidence in this case, and seems to have been the result of a determination to punish the defendant for some unknown offense which he was supposed to have committed, or attempted to commit, but of which he was not convicted."

"The judgment appealed from should be reversed and a new trial granted."

HIPPODROME BENEFIT FOR NEWSBOYS' CAMP

Forty Stars of Drama, Opera and Movies Will Donate Their Services Next Sunday Night.

The biggest benefit of the season in volume and variety of entertainment is to be given at the Hippodrome next Sunday evening at the regular Sunday night Hippodrome prices. The proceeds are to be devoted to providing for the accommodation of hundreds of additional boys at the Newsboys' Summer Camp at New Dorp, Staten Island.

The camp of the city newsboys is one of the most beneficial of upright enterprises. It has proved its worth in many ways. The newspapers and theatrical managers of the city are sponsors for Sunday night's benefit. Besides the Hippodrome stars more than forty of the leading entertainers in opera, drama, vaudeville and the movies have volunteered their services.

JOHN D. WILL BE HOST TO 600 CLUBWOMEN

Other Owners of Fine and Historic Homes Will Also Entertain Convention Delegates.

John D. Rockefeller will be host to 600 women delegates of the General Federation of Clubs, whose convention will be held in this city May 23 to June 2. On the last day of their official stay he will open his estate at Tarrytown and give them free range of his Japanese, Alpine and Italian gardens. Miss C. E. Mason of the Castle School, Tarrytown, will be the Chairman of the delegation.

Macy's—Infants' Dept., Third Floor, 35th Street.

A Source of Continuous Pleasure High Grade Film Cameras, $2.74

Original Price was $7.74

Offered at this remarkably low price are the well known and extremely popular No. 3 Anasco Cameras, recognized as among the best cameras on the market. They take pictures 4 x 5 inches in size, and may be operated with Eastman or any other standard films, obtainable in all photo supply stores.

The cameras are very compactly built, for such large pictures, and are the only box cameras covered with genuine leather. The trimmings are heavily nickel-plated. Each camera is equipped with two large, brilliant view finders. In view of the fine quality and high cost of materials and workmanship entering into the construction of these cameras, the manufacturers could not compete against cameras of inferior quality against lower prices. They therefore discontinued this model, and we purchased for cash all they had on hand. You can readily see the advantage of securing one of them, while the present supply lasts, at the remarkably low price quoted above.
